Retired Manufacturer Kidnaped, 'Date' Reports

RICH 71-YEAR-OLD TAKEN FROM AUTO BY TRIO, SHE SAYS

Former Secretary Informs Police Gunman Said, "Sorry, Lady, I'm Only Doing What Big Boss Tells Us To Do."

NO RANSOM NOTE IS FORTHCOMING

Wife Awaits at Home for Message; Police Fear for Life of Reputed Victim, Charles C. Ross.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(UP)—The comely former secretary of wealthy Charles C. Ross, 71, tearfully told police tonight how the retired manufacturer was snatched from his automobile and kidnaped by three men who indicated they would hold him for ransom.

Ross was seized last night as he drove toward Chicago with Florence Freilage, who had been his secretary for 11 years, after a "dinner date" at nearby Sycamore, Illinois.

Captain Dan Gilbert, chief of the state attorney's police, however, said no ransom note had been received, although Mrs. Ross had remained constantly at home awaiting word. Police checked all incoming calls and newspaper reporters were ordered to keep off the line.

No Definite Clues.
"So far we have only Miss Freilage's description to go on and no definite clues," Gilbert said. "Ross is not a young man and we are concerned for his life."

Police estimated the retired manufacturer's wealth at about $300,000.

Miss Freilage told police the kidnapping occurred about 12 miles west of Chicago's "Loop" district, along a road skirted on both sides by prairie.

"It was about 8 p. m. when we finished dinner and started to drive back to Chicago," she said.

"Two other automobiles pulled up as we left the curb and later seemed to be following us."

About 30 miles further on, she said, a machine with "unusually bright lights" pulled up behind them.

"I don't like the looks of this. I'm going to pull up and let them pass," Miss Freilage quoted Ross as saying.

Car Blocked Road.
As he pulled over, the other machine pulled over also, partially blocking the road, the woman said. There were three men in the machine.

"One, holding a pistol in his hand came over to our car and tried the front door next to the driver," she said. It was locked.

British Commissioner Of Galilee Murdered

JERUSALEM, Sept. 26.—(UP)—The British commissioner of Galilee, Lewis Andrews, was shot and killed today by a band of terrorists that waited in ambush outside a Nazareth church until the official emerged from Sunday services.

The commissioner's bodyguard, Constable Peter McEwan, was also killed in the fusillade of bullets. Witnesses declared that three assailants, two clad in European clothing and one in peasant dress, fired the fatal shots at close range, killing the British official instantly. McEwan died a half hour later.

Authorities of strife-torn Palestine, disrupted by a long-standing Arab-Jew conflict, immediately closed all roads leading from Nazareth and set police dogs on the trail of the terrorists.

Student Slain After Debate On Religion

Freshman Participating in Ardent Argument Is Held by Police.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 26.—(UP)—Albert Waters, 19, of Kansas City, Mo., a sophomore in the University of Missouri, was found shot to death today in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house a short time after he had engaged in an ardent discussion of religion with a fellow student.

Jack Kilpatrick, of Oklahoma City, a freshman fraternity brother of Waters, was taken into custody by police pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest tomorrow.

Coroner W. H. Tolson said he doubted whether Waters committed suicide.

U. S. '37 REVENUE MOUNTS BILLION; GEORGIA HAS GAIN

Better Business, Higher Taxes Held Responsible; Income Levies Increase 52 Per Cent Over 1936.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Better business conditions and higher taxes poured more than $1,000,000,000 of additional revenue into federal coffers during the last fiscal year.

Georgia showed a gain of $9,070,198 in internal revenue collections in 1937 over the previous year. In 1936, collections amounted to $16,430,559, as compared with $25,500,567 in 1937.

Analyzing internal revenue collections for the year ended June 30, the treasury said today these increased $1,328,000, or 32.2 per cent, over the previous year in the entire nation. Collections aggregated $4,653,195,000.

The report attributed the increase to "continued improvement in business, changed provisions and higher rates of tax on individual and corporate incomes and

ROBERT LATHAN, 56, JOURNALIST, DIES

Asheville Editor, Pulitzer Prize Winner, Succumbs to Hemorrhage.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 26.—(UP)—Robert Lathan, 56, editor of the Asheville Citizen and prominent civic leader of Asheville, died tonight at his home following a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Lathan was known throughout the nation as one of the south's outstanding editors and was one of the few southern newspaper editors to win the coveted Pulitzer prize for his editorials. In 1924 while serving as editor of the Charleston News and Courier, Charleston, S. C., his editorial "The Flight of the South Politically" was adjudged the best editorial of the nation that year.

Mr. Lathan was one of a party of 24 newspaper editors from 24 states who spent four months in Europe in 1927 under auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Mr. Lathan was born May 5, 1881, at York, S. C., the son of the Rev. Robert and Fanny Lathan. His father was an Episcopalian minister. His education was gained in the public schools and he started his business career as a school teacher. In 1900 he joined the editorial staff of the Columbia State, at Columbia, S. C., and remained there for three years.

In 1906 he went with the Charleston News and Courier and successfully filled every desk on the paper including telegraph editor, editorial writer, city editor and managing editor. From 1910 until he left the News and Courier, Mr. Lathan acted as general manager of the paper in addition to managing editor.

LAWYERS MAY FACE CONTEMPT ACTION

Showdown Rumored Due Today To Force Attorneys To Reveal Details of Clients' Identities.

Information from volunteer witnesses on graft and organized crime will be sought this week by the Fulton grand jury as it prepares this morning to begin questioning of 15 persons under subpoena in the vigorous investigation now entering its second week.

Call for volunteers to come forward with facts about alleged "pay-offs" to law enforcement agents, accompanied by promises of immunity, came from Morris Ewing, foreman of the grand jury; Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews and Chief of Police Hornsby.

Help of Public.
"With the help of the public we can get to the bottom of organized crime in Atlanta," they said.

Nevertheless, Special Prosecutor Andrews is prepared to summon on many special witnesses during the week, it was reported yesterday.

He had interviewed many persons secretly, but has refused to reveal the result of his questioning. It is believed he will bring a number of these persons before the grand jury in one of the several special sessions scheduled for the week.

Reports that a showdown will come today on citation of lawyers for contempt in refusing to discuss in detail their dealings with clients charged with racket of fences continued prevalent but received no official comment yesterday.

Two lawyers questioned by the grand jury in an effort to find who employed them to defend racketeers refused to tell the names of persons retaining them, it was said.

A list of witnesses summoned for today's session was closely guarded by Special Prosecutor Andrews, who would not comment upon it, but it was reported a majority of the persons called will be questioned particularly in regard to grafting by law enforcement agents.

Motorist Kills Girl, 7; Bond Set at $10,000

LA FAYETTE, Ga., Sept. 26.—(UP)—Bertha Hullender, pretty 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hullender, was killed at 9:30 o'clock this morning in front of the Hullender home, four miles north of here when she was struck by an automobile as she and her mother were walking toward Sunday school.

A man listed as Gaspard Hayes, of Bremen, Ga., who said he was driver of the automobile, made $10,000 bond soon after surrendering himself to Sheriff Creed Shelby, who charged him with involuntary manslaughter and fast and reckless driving. He was on his way north when a party of friends en route to Lookout Mountain for a Sunday sightseeing trip.

Hundreds Maul Paris Gendarmes As Duke and Wallis Step Off Train

PARIS, Sept. 26.—(UP)—British tourists shouting "Long live the Duke!" comprised a large part of the crowd of several hundred persons who gave gendarmes a mauling today when the Duke and Duchess of Windsor returned to France for the first time since their wedding at Caude on June 3.

Fifty policemen scuffled with the crowd on the platform of the Gare d'Est when the Duke and his bride stepped from the Orient Express after a trip from Vienna.

The Duke and Duchess were in high spirits, waved to the crowd and posed patiently for newspaper photographers before they were driven off to the Hotel Meurice where a luxurious nine-room suite overlooking the Tuilleries gardens awaited them. The Duke has occupied that same suite every one of his many visits to Paris since World War days.

"The Duke has never slept in any other bed in Paris since 1916," the Meurice manager boasted.

Officials from the British embassy met the Duke and Duchess for, although he is a dethroned king, Edward still is a Duke of the British royal family.

RENEWAL OF WAR OVER BENCH LOOMS

Hatred of Legal Profession Laid to President in Air Talk; 3,500 Are Expected to Attend.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Frederick H. Stinchfield, president of the American Bar Association, said today the Roosevelt administration apparently is determined to destroy the supreme court of the United States as we have heretofore known that court.

He asserted that an unequal struggle is impending "between the President and the lawyers of the United States" and appealed for nation-wide public faith in "our claims of wishing the best of our country."

The Minnesota lawyer spoke over the radio on the eve of the bar's convention, which seems certain to bring up the court reorganization controversy before a distinguished assemblage of governors, United States senators and court judges.

Public Faith.
Stinchfield called for manifestation of public "faith" in lawyers, saying President Roosevelt possessed what seemed "to amount to a hatred of the legal profession."

He asserted that any struggle which might arise between the President and the law profession would be unequal, because the President has "quite unbelievable powers."

"There is little he cannot do if he chooses to exercise all his powers," Stinchfield said. "On very many occasions the President has expressed what seems to amount to a hatred of the legal profession," Stinchfield said.

"One must believe that this hatred arises out of the fact that the lawyers are the ones as to whom he finds the greatest difficulty in controlling, either by persuasion or orders, their thoughts and their actions."

"If lawyers were seeking selfish ends," Stinchfield said, "they could not but wish a continuance of radical tendencies of the present

ATLANTAN KILLED ON WAY TO CHURCH

L. D. Bradshaw Is Struck by Auto at Boulevard and Greenwood Avenue.

L. D. Bradshaw, 73, of 1380 Piedmont avenue, N. E., was fatally injured last night when struck by an automobile on Boulevard at Greenwood avenue while on his way to church.

His death brings the traffic fatality total in the city for September to 13, which equals that of November, 1936, as the largest number in any one month of the year.

It was the 43rd traffic death in the city since January 1. Was Church Elder.

Bradshaw was walking to services at the Westminster Presbyterian church, where he was an elder, when he was struck by a car driven by Conrad Brown, 20, of Chamblee.

Admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital.

Father Saves 2-Year-Old Daughter by Throwing Her Clear From Vehicle at Moment of Impact.

MONTGOMERY, W. Va., Sept. 26.—(UP)—A speeding Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train killed seven persons tonight in a collision with a truck at the Hansford grade crossing.

A mother, father and four children were among the victims.

A fifth child, two years old, is in a Montgomery hospital with a broken arm. Attaches said she would recover.

The dead: Willard F. James, about 60, who Trooper Ellis Lea said was driver of the truck.

Ellory T. Brown, 36, Bertha Brown, his wife, 36, Their four children, William, 4; Myrtle, 9; Ruby, 12, and Donnie, 17.

Eyewitnesses said Brown apparently threw his youngest daughter, Emogene, 2, clear of the wreckage almost at the moment of impact, and that an unidentified negro picked up the child and turned her over to rescuers.

All of the victims were from

Reich Stages Record Show Of Her Might

Biggest Maneuvers Since World War Held for Visiting Dictator.

ROSTOCK, Germany, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Remilitarized Germany staged her biggest combined army and naval maneuvers since the World War today for two of Europe's strongest exponents of armed might—Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

After pompous ceremonies of welcome at Munich, Hitler and his Italian visitor traveled 800 miles north in separate trains last night to the closely-guarded Mecklenburg area along the Baltic sea where the war games are being played under greatest secrecy.

The maneuvers were timed to make it possible for the Fuehrer of Nazi Germany and the Duce of Fascist Italy to see the "Blue" army demonstrate a smashing victory over a "red" army which, for purposes of the games, was assumed to have invaded the area.

Hitler made a thrilling spectacle of the maneuvers. Standing with Mussolini atop a small hill 20 miles southeast of Rostock, Der Fuehrer sent into action hundreds of fighting planes, tanks and armored cars, along with herds of infantry, in a realistic attack on the Reds, who already were conveniently on the run.

Just by way of making the air fighting more impressive, the famous German stunt flyer and World War veteran, Udet, cavorted through the skies in a flashing Fieseler "Storch" plane. This fighting ship took off at a startling angle, climbing almost vertically.

Mussolini's followers said he was particularly impressed by the German anti-aircraft batteries, which displayed their technique in the air show.

Watch "Blue" Victory.
Aboard a ship of Wustrow, they watched the "blue" navy bring to a successful climax a "pirate hunt" against "red" submarines which were supposed to have made the Baltic unsafe for merchant shipping.

Although the gigantic demonstration of Germany's newly regained military and naval strength occupied most of their day, Hitler and Mussolini had considerable time to discuss the tense European political situation and their allied interests.

Their trains waited at Kroepelin, east of Rostock, for the return southward through Schwerin, capital of Mecklenburg. It was not disclosed where they would

Nazis To Press Americanism Fight, Chief Declares as 1,000 Goosestep

ANDOVER, N. J., Sept. 26.—(UP)—A parade of 1,000 uniformed men, women and children goosestepping to the bells of 20,000 persons marked the end today of the first season of the German-American folksung at Camp Norland.

The largest throng of the year, massed on the grounds of the camp, target of attacks by veterans and other organizations as "Nazi and un-American," heard National Bundsfuehrer-Fritz Kuhn proclaim the "determination of the bund to continue its fight for Americanism until America is controlled by Americans and not by a bunch of Russian-controlled Jews."

American flags outnumbered swastikas today in the building and on the grounds of the woodland camp, as ground was broken for the construction of a $40,000 building for next season.

Kuhn asked the bundsters to contribute to a fund for the center building, declaring: "Instead of spending 40 cents in Jewish movie houses it would be much better to give the money to the fund."

Then speaking in English Kuhn criticized Samuel Untermyer, of New York, anti-Nazi leader, and Representative Charles Dickstein, Democrat, New York, who has called for investigations of German-American activities in the United States.

MINISTER EMMET, EX-LAW PARTNER OF F. D. R., PASSES

Envoy to Austria Had Been in Charge for Only Ten Days; Few Persons Knew of His Illness.

VIENNA, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Grenville T. Emmet, new United States minister to Austria, died today of double pneumonia after a short illness.

Emmet, a former law partner of President Roosevelt, had been in active charge of the American ministry here for only 10 days. He was appointed to the post July 6.

He first became ill Thursday, after fulfilling regular appointments throughout the day. Only a few persons in Vienna knew of his illness, which at first he had insisted was merely a bad cold.

Not ill for 32 years.

The tall, robust former New York lawyer has prided himself on his health. He had not had even the slightest illness for 32 years.

At his bedside when the three-day struggle for life ended were Mrs. Emmet, John C. Wiley, new legation counselor, and four physicians.

Most members of the American colony had no opportunity to meet the new minister, who previously was minister to The Netherlands.

Soon after he presented his credentials to President Wilhelm Miklas September 14, Emmet contracted a slight cold but apparently recovered. He carried out his schedule of appointments with government officials and fellow diplomats until Thursday evening, when physicians found him suffering from a high fever.

Double pneumonia developed rapidly and heart complications set in.

Emmet had planned to leave for the United States this week to attend the wedding of his son, Grenville Emmet Jr., in Virginia.

The new minister was appointed to succeed George S. Messersmith, who became an assistant secretary of state.

Senior Partner.
Emmet was a senior partner in the law firm of Emmet, Marvin and Martin, New York city. President Roosevelt was a junior partner in the firm after his defeat for the vice presidency in 1920. At that time the firm name was Emmet, Marvin and Roosevelt.

'PUSH LIKE FLOOD SMASHING DIKES' THREATENED CITY

Rear Admiral Honda Warns That Slaughter of Civilians Will Continue as 303 Bodies Are Extricated From Debris.

STORMS HOLD OFF RAIDS ON NANKING

Japan Talks Peace in North, Attempts To Set Up Semi-Autonomous Rule Under Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Japanese rushed men and munitions into their Shanghai lines tonight to meet a Chinese counter-attack and start a Japanese offensive designed to crush all Chinese resistance in this area.

Rear Admiral Tadao Honda, Japanese naval attaché, warned that Japanese bombardment of Chinese non-combatants "will be duly carried out" regardless of loss of life, if it becomes necessary "by virtue of their residence near military objectives."

Japanese army officers announced flatly that they plan a major drive along the whole Shanghai front, and added that when the push gets under way "it will be like a flood breaking down the dikes."

Chinese officers pointed out, however, that the Japanese have failed to dislodge the defenders in successive attacks. They said Chinese lines are strong enough to inflict heavy losses.

In counter attacks today, the Chinese claimed they broke through the invaders' lines along the front northwest of Shanghai, recaptured two villages, and continued to advance. Japanese answered the attack with a heavy artillery bombardment. Japanese reinforcements of troops and guns moved to the front.

Command Changed.
General Chu Shao-Liang, first in rank among military commanders of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, took over command of Shanghai armies, relieving General Chang Chih-Tsung. No reason was given for the change.

Meanwhile, stormy weather gave Nanking, China's capital, a respite from Japanese air bombardment. The Chinese Red Cross planned a representation to the International Red Cross protesting yesterday's bombardment which endangered the Central hospital, a huge government institution whose main buildings were marked plainly with the organization's emblem.

Businessmen estimated the damage from five bombardments yesterday as about $5,000,000 (Chinese).

The comparatively low loss of life was attributed to Nanking's system of underground shelters available for most of the civilians remaining in the capital.

At Hankow and Wuchang, commercial cities of the middle Yangtze valley, 303 bodies of Chinese civilians were recovered from debris after yesterday's Japanese air raids.

The Japanese naval attaché offered as excuse for Japan's repeated bombardment of Chinese civilians a citation of the Hague convention of 1923 which, he said, sanctioned such bombardment when civilians live near military objectives.

Reports from North China.

as "Spineless."

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 26. (AP)—In an angry denunciation of Secretary of State Hull as "spineless," Samuel Untermyer, of New York, demanded today that the United States take a stand against what he termed the "open challenge" of the Nazi government's intention to propagandize in this country.

In a speech prepared for the annual convention of Jewish War veterans here, Untermyer, attorney and civic leader, referred to pro-Nazi Germans as "hyphenated politicians," and added:

"... acts of treachery, abetted and supported by a foreign country with which we fondly delude ourselves that we are at peace while it is overwhelming our country with false propaganda intended to poison the minds of our citizens have been going on for years."

"The trouble," he went on, "with us has been that, in our feverish and laudable anxiety to preserve world peace, our mild-mannered, spineless secretary of state has been sacrificing our dignity."

Whittaker, a southern West Virginia mining community.

Friends of the Brown family, which moved last week from Lincoln county to Whittaker, said that they had returned to their former home and were on the way back when the tragedy occurred.

James was a schoolteacher at Winifrede.

Trooper Lea, of the state police, said that there are no obstructions to a clear view of the tracks for 200 yards on each side and that three eyewitnesses told him the engineer of the train sounded his whistle before the crossing and applied brakes.

where Japanese have conquered the Chinese stronghold of Pekingfu and advanced southward, indicated Japan is talking peace to accomplish its objectives.

The advices said Japanese are attempting to persuade Chinese leaders to agree to formation of a semi-autonomous federation of the five Chinese provinces of Hopeh, Chahar, Shantung, Shensi and Suiyan.

Japanese were reported to have offered presidency of the proposed federation to several prominent Chinese with "known Japanese leanings." Chinese were said to have turned down the offer.

Girl's Confession Of Childish 'Fib' Nets Pass to Fair

BUTLER, Ga., Sept. 26.—(AP)—A young woman living near here whose conscience troubled her because she once lied about her age today had a free season ticket to the Georgia State fair in return for "fessing up."

In a letter to Ed G. Jacobs, president of the fair, she wrote: "For a long time my conscience has been troubling me terribly over a quarter I should have paid. When I went to the fair I was more than 12 years of age, but was told to tell if asked that I was under. Anyhow, I lied and now I wish to pay the other quarter so my Lord and Savior will give me rest from this thing."

Inclosed in the letter was 25 cents in stamps.

Ross Jordan, secretary-manager of the fair, responded immediately. His letter read in part: "We desire to hand you back the admission fee proffered and as a gesture of reward for honesty we are pleased to send you a complimentary season ticket to this year's fair."

KILLED BY BLOW

Watchman Held After the Death of Victim.

AMERICUS, Ga., Sept. 26.—Alex A. Johnson is dead and Bill Schaffer is in jail here as the result of an altercation between the two men early today.

Schaffer, nightwatchman employed at "The Echo," a roadhouse, struck Johnson with a heavy iron, crushing his skull and inflicting injuries that resulted in death within an hour, police reported.

LOWER TEMPERATURES FORECAST FOR TODAY

Partly cloudy skies and cooler weather will greet Atlantans this morning, the Candler field weather bureau predicted last night.

Temperature range will be between 80 and 60 degrees, considerably below yesterday's high of 86 and low of 64 degrees, the weatherman said.

Throughout Georgia the skies will be partly cloudy with cooler weather in the south and east central portions.

ROOSEVELT LEAVES YELLOWSTONE PARK

President and Family Make
80-Mile Trip To See
Geyser.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Sept. 26.—(UP)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt tonight turned away from relaxation in this natural wonderland to resume their "family inspection trip" of the west. Before them lay two days of campaign-like traveling and speaking in Idaho and Washington.

The Roosevelts, with their daughter, son-in-law and two grandchildren as added guests in their party, made an 80-mile motor trip to see Old Faithful geyser spout today. The President was in a rested, jaunty mood as forest rangers guided him along the park's asphalt trails to Old Faithful and through the Norris and Madison geyser basins. He was particularly interested in the bear, antelope and deer.

Departing from Yellowstone park tonight, the party will arrive tomorrow morning in Boise, Idaho, home of Senator William H. Borah, anti-court plan Republican. In the afternoon, he will drive to Nampa, Caldwell, Wilder, and Parma, Idaho, and then board his train again at Ontario at 7:15 p. m.

EDUCATOR DIES.

YORK, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Dr. C. H. Ehrenfeld, 73, educator and chemist, died last night from a heart attack. He was former president of the York Collegiate Institute.

MADISON FUGITIVE IS ARRESTED HERE

City Detectives Seize Negro on Tenth Street.

Four and one-half months of freedom ended for General Lee, 29, negro of Carrollton, fugitive from the Madison county gang, when he was captured in Atlanta yesterday.

Arrest was made by Detectives L. H. Satterfield and G. F. Barrett after receiving a tip the negro would be found at the intersection of Tenth and West Peachtree streets. He was returned to Madison county during the day when Warden C. A. Jacobson came for him.

Lee escaped with five others last May by sawing out the guard house during the night. The flight was not discovered for an hour. With the arrest of Lee, only one of the six is still at large. He was serving 15-20 years for robbery.

CONCORD MAN PASSES IN RESTAURANT HERE

E. N. Crawford, 57, of Concord, Ga., dropped dead here last night in a restaurant at the corner of Trinity avenue and Washington street.

M. E. Gordy, of 307 Crew street, employee of the restaurant, quoted Crawford as saying he felt as if he was going to faint when he entered the establishment. A few moments later Crawford dropped his hat to the floor and slumped over. His son, Robert, rushed to his father's side to aid him. He was taken to the Atlanta hospital in a police car, and physicians pronounced him dead on arrival. Besides his son, he is survived by his wife. The body was sent to Concord for funeral and interment.

CAMPAIGN PLANNED TO SPREAD LINT USE

Textile Institute Assumes
Prices Will Allow Compete-tion With Substitutes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Assuming this year's plentiful crop will reduce cotton prices enough to allow competition with cotton substitutes, the Cotton Textile Institute today began searching for new markets to absorb the estimated national yield of 16,000,000 bales.

Expecting a large supply of low-grade cotton, the Institute said it was preparing to take every price advantage that less expensive cotton would give.

Armed with "a cent-a-bale" promotion fund, sponsored co-operatively by spinners and shippers, the Institute plans a campaign to increase consumption of American cotton.

THE QUESTION IS:

DO SMOKERS APPRECIATE CAMEL'S
COSTLIER TOBACCOS?

THE BEST ANSWER IS:

CAMELS ARE THE LARGEST-
SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA!

Is it good business to spend millions more for costlier tobaccos? Well, the fact that Camels are the largest-selling cigarette shows that men and women do find something choice—something different—in Camels. Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

OXEN-AIDED REBELS CAPTURE 4 PEAKS, BREAK ASTORIA LINE

Snow Swirls Around Insurgents in Surprise Push at Dawn.

WITH NATIONALIST ARMY IN THE FIELD, Asturias, Spain, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Insurgent Nationalist Brigades, using wooden-wheeled carts drawn by oxen, captured four mountain peaks late today and broke the Loyalists' line in southeastern Asturias province.

The four peaks were Combs, Pienes, Portilla and the historic Mountain Hermitage of Arcenario. Snow swirled around the mountain tops as the Nationalists under General Miguel Aranda followed up their success later tonight and poured down the slopes in an advance toward Oviedo and Gijon from this new direction.

'Crowd and Run' Car Sought After Crash

These two negroes were victims of a crowd-and-run car. L. M. Kendall, 35, negro, of 263 Pine place, was driving a truck in front of 487 Fraser street, yesterday when an approaching car attempted to pass another, came far over on the left side of the road, forcing the truck into a tree. Both cars continued.

Kendall was admitted to Grady hospital with bruises and lacerations while a passenger, Willie Terrell, 13, of 229 Currier street, received lacerations of the forehead.

Police found no trace of the crowd-and-run car. They were unable to use their motorized transportation because of the creaky mountains.

Capture of the peaks gave the Nationalists a foothold in southeastern Asturias, which heretofore saw little action.

Only since the fifteenth century has the so-called "superiority of the white race" been manifest.

estates and the new levies upon payrolls. The latter were provided in the social security act. Of total internal revenue collections, income taxes provided $2,145,663,000. This revenue increased 52 per cent over the previous year, with the corporation income levy gaining 43 per cent and the tax on individual incomes 62 per cent.

The greater revenue gain from individuals, officials said, was due in part to operation of the 1936 revenue act, which imposed the surtax on undistributed corporate profits.

The tax tended to stimulate dividend distributions, increasing taxable income in the hands of security holders. In addition, individuals paid higher surtax rates on upper bracket incomes last year.

New York Highest. New York provided $988,090,000 of all internal revenue collections, or 21.24 per cent. Next in line were Illinois, with $409,693,000, or 8.81 per cent, and Pennsylvania, with $399,877,000 or 8.58 per cent.

South Dakota recorded the smallest collections for any state, with $1,626,000, or 0.04 per cent of the aggregate.

A comparative table of the collections for the fiscal year 1936 and 1937 follows:

ARMED BANDITS NET $100 IN GAS STATION HOLDUP

AMERICUS, Ga., Sept. 26.—Two bandits robbed a filling station on Cotton avenue here at noon today. Ben DuFree, in charge of the station, told officers the men purchased a small quantity of gasoline and offered a bill of large denomination in payment.

When he opened his pocket cash container, one of the men covered him with a pistol and demanded the money. DuFree handed over about $100.

Camera, Piano Offered in Essay Contest

This swing-time piano will go to some girl or boy in Atlanta's schools, for the best essays submitted on the subject "Tibet," the land featured in Columbia's "Lost Horizon."

Essay on Tibet Contest Is Open To All Pupils

Here is a new kind of contest! A parent-pupil, mother-daughter, father-son, family affair with prizes that mean something! For the lucky girl who wins, there is waiting a real, swing-size piano! It is small enough for her own room or the smallest apartment, but big enough to rank with the grandest. Think of it for parties, for home dancing. A piano of your own!

For the boy there is a de luxe folding Eastman camera, in a carrying case, which will take pictures anywhere, anytime. It's the kind of camera location directors might use in Hollywood—the kind every boy longs for.

And this is what you have to do. Anyone still in an Atlanta grammar, junior high or high school is eligible for the contest. Write a 300-word essay on "Tibet." Tell your mother or your father to help you, or ask your teacher to give you a hand in writing this essay on the land of the "Lost Horizon." You may use reference books or consult any authority. But your essay must be in the mail before 12 midnight next Saturday.

Judges and date of the announcement of the winners will be published shortly in The Constitution.

In addition to the grand prizes, there will be guest tickets to see "Lost Horizon," the only motion picture ever made with a setting in the mysterious, forbidden land of the Himalayas, lying behind the old barriers of the Himalayas mountains. "Lost Horizon," starring Ronald Colman, opens at the Rialto theater next Friday.

Get busy now on your essay on Tibet—the land of the "Lost Horizon."

This de luxe Eastman camera will also go to some girl or boy for a best essay on the topic, "Tibet."

He held his gun against the glass and threatened to shoot if Mr. Ross didn't open the door.

Ross complied, she said. "Are you his secretary?"

"No."

"Then what are you—his daughter, his sweetheart?"

"No—only a friend."

"Then Miss Freinage quoted the gunman: 'This is a kidnap. Do you think this guy is worth $250,000?'"

She said she did not know and then pleaded with the man that Ross' health was poor and that his life might be endangered.

"Sorry, lady," she said the gunman replied. "I'm only doing what the big boss tells us to do."

She was forced to lie down on the floor of the machine while a second gunman took $85 from her purse, she said, while the first was leading Ross away.

"He Was an Amateur." "I'd know that voice anywhere," she said of the first gunman. "He was an amateur. I'm sure of that."

He sounded as nervous as I was," Mrs. Ross said she knew of the couple's dinner engagement and had not gone along herself because she was tired. She said Miss Freinage was an old family friend.

Irving Cummings, Ross' attorney, conferred with police and indicated he would ask federal agents to take a hand in the case if Ross was not found soon.

Ross formerly headed a concern manufacturing greeting cards and valentines.

"We can do nothing now except wait for the kidnapers to make the first move," Captain Gilbert said. "We have no tangible clues."

All incoming calls at the Ross apartment were being checked and newspaper reporters were warned to keep off the line.

Gilbert, who said he feared for Ross' life, announced police had released Miss Freinage after questioning her 17 hours.

"I believe she is telling the truth," Gilbert said.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 27, 1937.

THIRSTY LITTLE WEVILS

The boll weevil doesn't especially relish the taste of cotton. The reason he bores his way into a cotton boll is because, even on the driest day, there is some moisture left inside the boll and the poor little divil is thirsty! That is the discovery made by Florida growers who, this year, have again successfully produced the high priced sea island cotton for market.

Thus the notorious insect pest may, in the long run, disprove the logic of that ancient axiom of the bibulous human, that his mouth is as dry as cotton.

The revival of sea island cotton production in Florida and south Georgia owes its success, it is stated, to the discovery that it is thirst that impels the weevil to climb the stalk and enter the boll.

It was in 1924 that sea island producers gave up planting the crop because of the utter destruction of the cotton, year after year, by the weevil. Now, after two years of test plantings, it is conclusively demonstrated that the long stapled variety may be profitably grown. The value of the discovery lies, first, in the constant demand for this long, tough, silky fibre in the manufacture of automobile tire casings and, secondly, in the complete monopoly enjoyed by the planters in the sea island belt, which stretches from the islands of the Carolina-Georgia coast to north Florida. Nowhere else in the world is there the correct atmospheric condition—a degree of humidity necessary for the growth of the ultra fine cotton.

In Egypt they grow something similar, known as sakel cotton and Arizona produces a long stapled Pima cotton, but neither command the same price on the world markets that is brought by the true sea island. In 1936 the small sea island crop brought as high as 35 cents a pound to the producer and, at one time, reached 44 cents on the Liverpool market. This year the average, for all grades, is expected to be more than 25 cents a pound.

To the experts at the Florida state experiment station at Gainesville is given the credit for discovering the means by which the boll weevil may be defeated by sea island cotton growers.

The conclusion that thirst impelled the insect's ravages was reached after observation that it was during the dry periods that the pests left their underground homes to feed on the cotton. This was followed by the observation that direct treatment of the plants with calcium arsenate was more successful than dusting with the poison, either from airplanes or by spraying.

George D. Smith, Florida entomologist, suggested it was the moisture within the boll the weevil really sought and that, if the insects could be tempted to other moisture before reaching the boll, the problem would be solved.

So they mixed the arsenical poison with cane syrup and applied it to the leaves and stalks below the bolls. And the weevils proved the truth of the theory by turning aside to drink the poisoned syrup and dying in their tracks! The poison syrup is applied by men with crude mops, made of rag tied to a stick, soaked in the poison mixture. The men push this ahead of them as they walk between the rows of cotton plants, holding the mops low so they will strike the lower leaves and stalks.

One treatment is potent for a week, unless a heavy rain washes the mixture away within three hours after application. And five or six applications, before the middle of June, are sufficient. After mid-June, it is stated, the boll sheaths have hardened so the weevil cannot bore within them.

There are tremendous potentialities, both for south Georgia and north Florida, if the sea island cotton industry, with its world monopoly, is back again to stay.

SIGNALING CONFUSION

According to a recent survey, there is a startling diversity in the meaning of hand signals, used by automobile drivers, in the different states.

Nine states do not, by law, require any such signals at all. Sixteen specify that a horizontal extension of the left arm means a left turn; upward turn of the forearm, a right turn, and downward extension of the arm, a stop or slowdown. Other states interchange the meaning of these signals. Twelve require only the horizontal extension of the arm as a warning the driver is going to turn, slow down or stop.

Travelers who cover many states, especially vacation tourists who make extensive trips, find it impossible to learn and memorize all the laws and regulations for driving in the various states through which they pass. The result is a confusion almost as bad as if there were no traffic rules at all.

It would seem to be a simple matter, on as rudimentary an issue as hand signals, for all the states to agree on some uniform system. It would simplify the problems of driving and decrease the hazards of the highway.

WE'RE BETTER OFF

The average American is considerably better off today than he was one year ago. This is revealed in the result of studies by the Federal Departments of Commerce and Labor.

The income of the average American, including all groups, has increased between 10 and 15 per cent during the first eight months of 1937. Broken down into income groups, labor is getting 15 per cent more in its pay envelope, dividends on stocks and bonds are 33 per cent higher and farm income has increased 14 per cent.

That this increase in dollars and cents is a real advantage is shown when it is compared to the rise in living costs.

Retail prices have been analyzed by the Department of Labor showing that food today costs 2.3 per cent more than it did one year ago. Costs of other essentials of life show approximately the same advance.

Thus, with incomes up at least 10 per cent and with living costs up only 3 or 4 per cent, the "real income," which is measured by purchasing power, shows substantial gain.

Other indications of onward marching prosperity are found in statistics of other federal departments. Unemployment, for instance, is estimated today at not more than 7,500,000, even by the most pessimistic, whereas, at the peak of the depression, 15,000,000 workers were jobless. And at the end of July of this year the number of families and single individuals receiving relief, in one form or another, had dropped to 2,900,000 from more than 5,000,000 in March, 1933.

FARMING OF THE FUTURE

Prehistoric man scratched the earth with a crooked stick and stuck a few seeds in the ground, thereby becoming the father of agriculture.

Some day in the future a trained scientist is going to replace the farmer of today, completing the evolution that began when that first farmer disturbed the surface of the first patch of cultivated land.

Dr. R. B. Harvey, plant physiologist of the University of Minnesota farm, at St. Paul, gives a fascinating foreglimpse of coming farm science by accelerating the ripening of fruit and vegetables with ethylene gas.

By the use of this gas Dr. Harvey has ripened many varieties of plants in half the time required by unaided nature. Apples and pears sealed in a room filled with ethylene gas have reached full development, while companion fruits, ripening the natural way, have yet been in the green, inedible stage.

Tomatoes have reached blushing red perfection in less than a week, while bananas, in the same time, have taken on a uniform yellow or brown tint, with each bunch weighing more than the naturally ripened fruit.

The same results have been achieved with flowers, which not only reach the beauty of full blossom in startlingly brief time, but bring four buds where only two grew before.

The process was developed after the discovery that certain fruits give off ethylene gas emanations while ripening. Tests revealed that this is a general characteristic of the ripening process. The method of hurrying ripening by, as it were, feeding ethylene gas to the plants was a logical deduction which tests have proved accurate.

In addition to greater speed of growth, the use of ethylene gas does away, to large extent, with many plant diseases. In the case of citrus fruit, dealers in New York report only 2 per cent afflicted with "stem end rot," when ripened by the ethylene method, compared to an average of 34 per cent in the naturally ripened fruit.

The advantages of accelerated ripening are manifold. It enables the grower to take advantage of higher prices paid for early season fruits and vegetables and it lessens his loss through plant diseases.

It envisages, too, a coming day when science, walking hand in hand with the practical farmer, shall lift agriculture from a chance-taking, hit-or-miss undertaking, to a certain, profitable industry using the soil and sun and air and water as raw materials and turning out a uniform product with the mathematic assurance of any modern industrial enterprise.

The Far Eastern peoples, too, are learning the newer names for things. They no longer "re-treat," but withdraw to a previously prepared position.

England is reported amused and puzzled by the war scare over here. On the other hand, she thinks it peculiar that buffalo roam our streets.

China's soldiery is giving up its quilted coats for trimmed uniforms in the western style. We never could see fighting in negligees.

Editorial of the Day

CIRCUS TRIALS

(From the Hartford Daily Courant.)
For several years the American Bar Association has taken up at its annual conventions the problem of how to prevent criminal trials from degenerating into public spectacles. As a basis for discussion at the coming convention, a distinguished committee of lawyers, editors and publishers headed by Newton D. Baker has just submitted a report recommending a course intended to eliminate "circus trials." It proposes the abolition of public discussion of trials by witnesses, bulletins by counsel and suggests that attendance in a courtroom be limited to the number of seats available.

Ordinarily it is in the power of the judge to elevate the standards of conduct. He has very broad powers to punish for contempt of court any lawyer, witness or newspaperman who infringes the dignity of the trial. But, though he has the power, it is not always easy to exercise it. He deserves, in consequence, better co-operation, both from the bar and the press, than he generally receives. As was made clear at the Hauptmann trial, the dignity of justice is all but impossible to maintain against the efforts of a sensational press and publicity-hungry counsel to degrade it.

The establishment of a new tradition of court dignity in this country is likely to be a long and difficult task. Nonetheless, it should be undertaken. The "circus trial" all too often makes a mockery of American justice. It can and should be eliminated through the intelligent co-operation of the bench, the bar and the press.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

WAR ZONE BONUS WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The sparks set off by the row between the seamen's unions and Chairman Kennedy, of the Maritime Commission, over war-zone bonuses has started a fuse that leads right up to the door of the secretary of state.

The demand of the men who have to sail ships into territory adjacent to the world's two undeclared wars was only half of the story. They charged that Mr. Kennedy "indorsed the policy of the shipowners" when he announced that a $50 bonus would be paid men entering certain prescribed "danger zones." They had asked for $250.

But back of that demand was a definite attitude toward the whole policy of the government. And the reply turned an attitude into a program of action.

For the first time in our history, in a major crisis, organized labor threatens to take a hand in forcing a change in the nation's foreign policy.

The seamen's representative at the conference on bonuses brought up the question of possible "internment" of ships. Mr. Kennedy's official announcement, which probably raised the hair on the heads of the diplomats, officially recognized the possibility of internment.

The ink was hardly dry on the statement when the peace people were telegraphing the President to invoke the neutrality law. If an official agency of the government recognizes possible internment, they reasoned, that meant recognition that a state of war existed.

UNION DEMANDS The unions, many of them already emphatic in their demands for neutrality, and some of them openly opposed to the present government policy, which they say helps the so-called Fascist regimes of Franco and the Mikado, were spurred to action.

A resolution proposing boycott of Japanese goods is already prepared for introduction at the meeting of the AFL in Denver.

John Lewis, head of the CIO, has refused to permit his organization to pass resolutions affecting foreign policy because his is not a national union. But his executive committee meets shortly in Atlantic City to make plans for CIO as an individual and independent entity. It is well known that CIO is far more positive in its attitude regarding Japan and the Spanish Insurgents than is the AFL. CIO sympathizers say that Mr. Lewis will probably have something to say on the subject.

According to sentiments expressed by the CIO representatives who took part in the conference over the bonuses, they considered the Maritime Commission is favoring General Franco by minimizing the danger of shipping, and thus encouraging it, in the vicinity of the two ports held by the Insurgents, Cadiz and Seville.

From the viewpoint of the men who have been handling foreign affairs with the finest of silk gloves it is little less than devastating to have the tarry fingers of the hardy, not to say hardboiled, seamen thrust into the situation.

FREIGHT RULING There may be a good reason why the national mediation board has not appeared to be making sensational progress in ironing out differences between the railroads and the "Big Four" unions and the switchmen over higher wage demands. (Nearly a month ago, William M. Leiserson, the government's ace conciliator in rail labor disputes, went to Chicago to see if a strike could be averted.)

Anyhow, there are those who are professing to see some connection between the tempo of the mediation proceedings and a matter pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This august body has the final say-so as to whether the freight-paying public can pay a little more.

It now has under advisement the question of whether the eastern group of railroads shall be permitted to raise their freight rates. All arguments in the case have been completed. While no definite date for announcing a decision has been set by Commissioner Atchison, who has jurisdiction of the matter, it is expected that it will be in the near future.

Meanwhile, it is barely whispered that both sides in the labor controversy are doing a little stalling for time until the rate question is settled. Should the commission grant the demand for higher rates, it would be easier for the roads to handle some of the wage increase being asked by the workers.

OF ALL THINGS! Some of those alleged bourbons of the south, who heaved a sigh of relief when Rex Tugwell left the administration after his painful speech about the "Farmers and Workers" that brought the slogans of Moscow painfully near America, had another start the other day.

Visiting the Lee mansion in Arlington, Va., just across the Potomac from the capital, they saw a horrible sight. In the slave quarters, in company with the good old American spinning wheels in the foreground, they saw upon the wall, crossed emblematically, a hammer and a sickle.

NOTED WITH CONCERN There was an unintentionally tragicomic note in the statement of Mr. Kennedy on the subject of hazards of sailors on the high seas these days.

The seamen noted with some concern that the statement actually said that they were to receive "full wages during any such possible internment." The word was spelled that way twice.

SILHOUETTES

Brooks County

Pleads for Beauty.

The Brooks County Chamber of Commerce, under Quinlan date-line, would break a lance as the champion of roadside beauty. The organization enters the lists in the combat to do away with ugliness along Georgia highways and seeks to make the roadside panorama a thing of constant loveliness for the eye of the tourist, whether he be native Georgian or visitor from the most distant quarter of the globe.

It is a worthy cause. And there is little room for beautification, although it must not be forgotten that even as it is today the scenery in Georgia ranks near the top in the list of the world's scenic glories.

However, the Brooks county folks want the state highway department to take charge of a statewide program, with the cooperation of the suggested departments of state activity, including the state school of forestry; the school of horticulture or school of landscape engineering; the state division of forestry; the state prison commission; the state board of health; the division of parks, historical sites and mountains; the state historian; state department of education; all county boards of commissioners and, last, but very far from least, the people of Georgia.

Nurseries

To Grow Trees.

They want nurseries established for the growth of pine trees, hardwoods, dogwoods, red buds, crape myrtles, mimosaes, hollies and other ornamental trees for planting along the roadsides.

They want all unsightly and mosquito breeding "bar pits" properly sloped and drained.

They want properly inscribed steel markers along the highways near all places of historical interest.

They want the shoulders of all highways properly sloped, dressed, planted in grass and beautified with shrubbery.

And, perhaps most important of all, they want all commercial advertising signs removed from the rights-of-way and they want the people of Georgia to refrain from patronizing those merchants, or manufacturers, that insist upon leaving their signs up to mar the roadside view.

It's a Good Idea.

The whole plan is, by and large, a good idea.

But that removal of advertising signs appeals most strongly to me. There is nothing, to my mind, that so spoils the pleasures of a country automobile journey than the long succession of billboards and signs tacked to trees, posts, etc.

Unfortunately, removal of such signs from the rights-of-way will be a long and costly job. After all, the right-of-way only extends a few feet on each side and, after all, state authorities cannot stop the posting of advertising matter on private property, provided the owner consents.

So that is where the force of public disapproval can be effectively used. If it becomes a general practice to avoid, whenever possible, purchasing goods so advertised, the advertisers will quickly learn they are injuring themselves by persisting in the obnoxious practice.

Incidentally, couldn't we extend the idea? How about not voting for all political candidates who mar the beauty of nature by posting their own faces upon the posts and trees?

And upon the telegraph posts and fences within the cities.

That, too, I think, is a good and pregnant suggestion.

Wreck of Lady Elgin.

In 1860 the lumber schooner Augusta collided in the night with the passenger steamer Lady Elgin, off Waukegan, in Lake Michigan. Receiving no answer to repeated calls of "Do you need help?" the skipper of the Augusta sailed away to Chicago, left the Lady Elgin sinking with 393 aboard. Of them 295 drowned. Seventeen of the 98 saved were rescued by Edward W. Spencer, who swam between shore and ship again and again before collapsing with the words, "Did I do my best?"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Son of NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—What a remarkable young man this is, to be sure, this 21-year-old son of Benito Mussolini, who, without previous experience in the motion picture business, becomes one of the leading Italian producers. Vittorio Mussolini has come to this country to study American methods for a few days, and on his return to Italy will produce movies in co-operation with Mr. Hal Roach. His success is assured before he begins, because failure is not a habit of the Mussolinis. His father's own newspaper is proof of that.

It is a matter of pride, not to say prudence, in Italy to subscribe to the Duce's newspapers and advertise in the same.

The circulation manager has an easy time and never is reduced to the necessity of promoting amateur prizefights in which little gladiators get their little brains punched off and their little brains scrambled in order to sell papers. He doesn't have to give away sets of Dickens as premiums for subscriptions or run crossword puzzles to make circulation and the promotion manager has no problems at all.

The reason for this is that the editor usually has a break of from 12 to 24 hours on big news developments, which makes it necessary for all the other Italian papers to quote from and thus advertise the Duce's own paper.

This advantage on the news breaks is due to sheer journalistic genius, of course, although a rival journalist might have private, unspoken suspicions that there was some connection between these scoops and the fact that the proprietor of Mussolini's newspaper is also the principal source of news.

Bad Luck

For Rival

There is a superstition, but really no superstition (the Italians are a superstitious people, you know), that it would be very bad luck for a rival to scoop the Duce's own paper by independent rooting and digging. And being so very superstitious they also think it brings good luck to give prominent credit to the Duce's journal in lifting news belatedly therefrom.

At times when the war scares are up and shipping by sea and rail is restricted, it occasionally becomes necessary to limit the quota of newspaper for the Italian papers, all but the Duce's own, and this, too, tends to promote the success of Mussolini's property. But, after all, what would you? Would you starve a journal which, by superior performance, has shown itself to be the best in the country, and thus curtail the supply of intelligence and inspiration which the people derive from its pages? Oh, you would, would you? Then you would find yourself making a very bad mistake. No irresponsible demands for look at the Duce's income tax returns, either.

It is easy to foresee tremendous success for Vittorio Mussolini in the motion picture business, and the American Mr. Roach is indeed fortunate to have established relations with so gifted an associate. There will be no problems of equipment or stock or talent in the studios of Mussolini and Roach, and who is the theater operator anywhere in the boot who would have the wisdom to refuse to exhibit one of Vittorio's productions?

Be Good,

Or Else

But suppose that such a threat were? Might it not be a source of electric power, and that unfortunately his theater would have to remain dark for a spell? Indeed? Might he not be picked up on suspicion of disloyalty to the Duce himself in declining to show the movies made by the Duce's friends? For, if Vittorio unthinkingly should fail in the movie business would that not reflect on the name of Mussolini and wouldn't that impair the interests of the nation and, thinking straight back to the source of the trouble, wouldn't that theater owner's refusal be an act of disloyalty?

Let it not be thought that the Mussolinis or their particular friends enjoy any special privileges, but neither should it be forgotten that they are very smart people, the Mussolinis and their friends. Americans in Rome soon learn.

Your correspondent, when in Rome, learned that a young lawyer, the son of a close friend of the Duce, had been retained as counsel for an American firm which had a large sum of money deposited there. He was unable to dislodge the money, but under the law it was all right to pay him a large proportion of it as his fee for making the effort. If he then kicked back two-thirds of the fee to his client and the client shipped it home to America, would that be a racket or would it be a private arrangement and nobody's business?

Youth is wonderful, and it is inspiring to observe the phenomenal success of a Duce's son in any country and in any line of business, whether it be the movies, the insurance and bonding business, the liquor permit business or what.

The Kaiser Wouldn't Have Risked It If He Had Known The English Would Fight

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Many things happen behind the scenes of government which are not suspected by the people.

When the World War got under way, both sides made a bid for the support of Italy. The politicians who ruled England and France said to the Italian rulers: "Join us and you shall have large territories in Africa as your reward."

The people of Italy were not consulted, nor told for what purpose they were fighting, yet they were sent out to die and be maimed and blinded by the hundred thousand. They earned the bribe.

But when the war was won, honor was overcome by greed and England and France divided the spoils and left Italy unpaid.

When Mussolini had developed his military machine, he demanded the promised reward. And when his demands were ignored, he notified English officials, early in 1935, that he intended to take Ethiopia.

You remember what followed. English politicians did nothing till the campaign began. Then they fluttered around like angry hens and sent a fleet to make a childish and futile bluff.

Mussolini ignored the bluff, thus exposing England's weakness before the world, and astonished the experts by conquering Ethiopia in a few months.

Now Marshal de Bono, of Italy, has written a book in which he reveals the inside story that most informed people suspected.

Mussolini was bluffing when he threatened to take Ethiopia. If England had said no—if he had been told in plain words that English battleships would keep his transports out of the Suez Canal, he would have backed down. He didn't dare risk war with England.

Now, there are two ways to preserve peace. One is to let a bully take what he desires, and the other is to face him with superior force and dare him to try it.

English politicians tried to prevent war by allowing Mussolini to take what he wanted. But it didn't prevent war. It permitted a beastly war in Ethiopia, and emboldened Mussolini to join the war in Spain, and thus may lead to another world war.

One firm and courageous word, spoken in time, would have prevented the whole ghastly business and saved England's prestige—on which world peace may depend.

We all desire peace, but many who strive to maintain it are employing methods that encourage war. A word can stop a bully before he starts, but only force can stop him after the first blow.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Strange Powers Of a Priest.

The recent death of Abbe Mermet removes yet another of those Catholic priests who, like Mendel, will be remembered rather for their services to science than for their eminence in the church. The Abbe Mermet practiced and developed more than 50 years a system of radio-aesthetics concerning which there is still some doubt whether it should be classed as pure science or as science with an admixture of art and personality.

The Abbe himself always strenuously denied that his own personality had anything to do with would-be remarkable achievements in radio-aesthetics, and contended to the last that he was as much a scientist as any student of chemical reactions. Like many of those whose lifework has lain in French Switzerland, the Abbe Mermet was a Frenchman, having been born near Annecy 71 years ago. But the whole of his working life was spent in Switzerland, and throughout all his experience in the strange science which he did so much to develop he remained a simple, hard-working parish priest.

Water Divining.

The Abbe's radio-aesthetics sprang from his interest in the age-old practice of water-divining. In 1833 there was a terrible drought in western Switzerland, and the Abbe did great service to his parishioners of the moment in discovering hidden streams for them by means of a "pendulum" which he had invented, and which he spent a large part of the rest of

TEXTILE MARGINS REPORTED HIGHEST IN TWELVE YEARS

16.60 Cent Average Is Difference Between Raw Cotton, Cloth.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Government cotton experts reported today that cotton mill margins—the difference in price between a pound of raw cotton and its cloth equivalent—was the highest last season in 12 years.

The 16.60 cent average compared with a low of 9.43 cents for the 1931-32 season and the previous peak of 16.03 cents 12 years ago in 1925-26.

Margins Significant. The data were included in a survey by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of average raw cotton prices, wholesale cloth prices, and resulting mill margins.

The economists said the survey was made because mill margins "are significant from the standpoint of both cotton producers and consumers" and "have an important bearing upon the quantity of cotton consumed and the prices consumers pay for cotton textiles."

The 12-year survey, worked out on a basis of monthly and season averages, showed a wide fluctuation in raw cotton costs, cloth prices and margins.

17 Cloths Studied.

Averages of these indicated, the

Thereupon, they swept up his money while seated on an auto running board in front of 65 Ivy street yesterday. They asked if he wanted to play blackjack. He said no.

Last night James thought blackjack might have given him a sporting chance with his $23.

government economists said that "raw cotton costs constitute a little over one-half and mill margins a little less than one-half of the wholesale price of unfinished cotton cloth."

Seventeen different cloth constructions were used in the study. These did not include any fine cloths. The bureau said margins in these "are much greater."

Mill margins during the 12 years varied from 18.41 cents in October, 1925, to 7.65 cents in July, 1932.

WPA OFFICIAL HITS ECONOMICS IN DIXIE

Tenancy Held Lineal Descendant of Slavery.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 26.—(AP) Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the WPA, told the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union convention delegates today that their handicaps came, not from the depression, but from a long-standing economic system and a firmly established pattern of social traditions and customs.

After reciting the ills suffered in recent years by all agricultural sections, he declared, "in the south since the Civil War we have had the peculiar institution of tenancy, the direct lineal descendant of slavery."

RIVERS SETS DATE TO RAISE VETS' FUND

Campaign for Former Soldiers Is Indorsed by Roosevelt.

A proclamation Saturday by Governor Rivers set aside the period of September 25-October 25 for campaigns by chapters over Georgia of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War to raise funds for emergency and supplemental care of veterans above that provided by the federal government.

The campaign by the Betty Harrison Jones and Morton Turnbull Nicholls chapters of the D. A. V. in Atlanta, will be conducted Friday, October 8. It has been proclaimed already by Mayor Hartsfield and is indorsed by President Roosevelt. Mrs. Henry M. Nicholls, general chairman, is organizing a corps of women from leading club groups to conduct the drive. Mrs. A. Homer Carmichael is co-chairman.

Governor Rivers' state-wide proclamation follows:

"Whereas: The Department of Georgia, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, have set aside September 25 to October 25, 1937, as 'Forget-Me-Not' period for the state of Georgia; and

"Whereas: The need of a fund to provide supplementary and emergency care of these disabled veterans and their families challenges the sympathy and generous co-operation of every citizen of Georgia to the end that cases of desperate need may be alleviated and acute suffering on the part of their families prevented;

"Therefore: I, E. D. Rivers, Governor of Georgia, proclaim September 25 to October 25, 1937, as 'Forget-Me-Not' period, and do commend the cause of the disabled veterans to the public and request generous contributions to this fund."

BIGGEST ROUNDUP OF CATTLE ENDS

'Circle' Sends 2,500,000 Pounds to Market.

NEW MEADOWS, Idaho, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Western America's biggest cattle roundup of the century ended tonight on the "Circle C" ranch in this valley under the snow-tipped Rockies.

In 103 railway stock cars 2,600 purebreds—Herefords—2,500,000 pounds of beef valued on the hoof at $300,000—rolled Denverward to be fattened and turned into steaks and roasts. Three trains were required for the trip down a winding branch line to Weiser, Idaho, on the Union Pacific main line where the trains could be consolidated.

"The shipment is the largest from one shipper to one consignee in the 70 years' history of our railroads," said C. R. Likins, New Meadows freight agent.

"And the roundup is the biggest in the west in nearly 40 years."

PICK-UP STATIONS

2 Robbers Spotted On Police Force

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(UP) Christos Christofis was held up and robbed of $100 today in his restaurant by four men. He trailed the bandits for several blocks and was surprised to see two enter a police station.

Christofis followed them in, told the desk sergeant of the robbery and identified two members of the pickpocket squad as part of the gang.

The detectives were suspended temporarily and locked up in their own police station. Two other men were arrested as suspects.

IL DUCE WATCHES HIS SON CLOSELY

Dictator, Fearing Demonstration, Opposed Trip.

ROSTOCK, Germany, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini is keeping a watchful eye on the movements of his son, Vittorio, who is in the United States to learn something about motion picture production.

It was learned today that Il Duce was not particularly eager for his son to go to America, because of possible Communist or anti-Fascist demonstrations.

But now that Vittorio has reached Hollywood safely, his father's worries along that line have abated. Nevertheless, he is staying in close touch with Vittorio and has ordered all messages from him forwarded without delay.

FEDERAL RESERVE BROADENS RULES

All Good Assets of Banks Are Made Acceptable as Loan Collateral.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP) The Federal Reserve Board broadened today its discount and loan rules to facilitate bank lending to finance increased business activity.

The board revised its "regulation A" governing loans from the reserve system to member banks in accordance with the banking act of 1936, saying business improvement indicated the broader lending powers conferred by that act soon would be needed.

The revised regulation and the 1935 act do two things. They expand the eligible list for discounts and create permanently a new type of reserve loan called "advances." The rate on advances is fixed by law at one-half of 1 per cent above the discount rate.

ATLANTA YOU ARE INVITED TO See for Yourself!

Here is a complete line of the most practical, most efficient and most ingenious office supplies it is possible to produce. Each item has unique advantages over competitive products. Advantages so obvious and evident that you can see for yourself, through simple, conclusive tests, that KODYE offers you greater service at greater savings than any other brand. For example:

1. KODYE TYPEWRITER RIBBONS may be tested on your own machines, against any other ribbons you choose, and, if properly selected by thread count and inking for the type of service required, will prove unquestionably superior. Priced from $6.00 per dozen.

2. KODYE CARBON PAPERS give perfect carbon copies—clearer, cleaner . . . and last longer, when properly selected, than any other brand. Priced from $1.00 per box.

3. KODYE WRITING FLUIDS prove their superiority by their performance. They will not clog, fade, wash out; they flow like water off a duck's back, dry smooth as a kitten's ear. Certified tests prove that KODYE contains less solids and has greater permanency than any of eight other standard inks. Priced from 15¢ per 2-oz. bot.

4. KODYE KURLY KLIPS are a revolutionary new design. Their "paper-streamed," air-thin, tempered-steel construction hugs papers closely, prevents tearing, eliminates picking up loose sheets. They save up to 50% in filing space and effect substantial savings in postage, in many cases, because of their lighter weight. Price: 50 cents per thousand.

See these superior products in their modern, attractive packages. Ask your stationer for evidence of tested superiority. Buy from him today. KODYE Products will increase the efficiency of your office force . . . add to the appearance of your office correspondence and cut your office costs.

THE RANDALL COMPANY
Cincinnati, Ohio . . . Established 1855

"It is the policy of The Randall Company, manufacturers of KODYE office supplies, to sell only through reputable stationers and office supply dealers except in rare cases where volume requirements make a retail source of supply impractical. The retailers of this city now have ample KODYE stocks on hand, and we urge you to ask any of the leading firms listed below for further information."

AVERAGE INCOME IN STATE TOWNS IS SET AT $1,431

Agriculture Department Survey Reveals Majority of Families Rent Homes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department disclosed today a report showing the average 1935-36 income of 2,675 native white families in 15 Georgia and South Carolina towns.

Of these families, which averaged four members, 40 per cent had more than one wage-earner. The report was issued as part of a study of 19 small cities, 140 villages and 66 farm counties by the Bureau of Home Economics. The 15 villages were Winder, Commerce, Greensboro, Jefferson, Comer, Madison, Social Circle and Washington, Ga., and Manning, Summerton, Lamar, Lake City, Timmonsville, Camden and Bishopville, S. C.

Multiple-Earner Families. The southeastern villages showed the highest percentage of multiple-earner families of any studied. The percentage of workers decreased inversely with the income level. Of families with $1,500 to $1,999 income, 49 per cent had two or more earners, while among those receiving $3,000 or more, only 32 per cent had more than one earner.

Renting families greatly outnumbered home owners in the Georgia and South Carolina villages. There were 1,276 renters to 901 owners.

The average rental was $11 a month, 291 of the families paying under $5 a month, 492 from $5 to $9, 362 from $10 to $14, and 247 from $15 to $19. Only 14 paid $35 or more.

The southeastern villagers paid the same average monthly rental as the northwestern. In New England they paid $17, in Pennsylvania and Ohio $14, in California $15, in the plains, $13, and in the Rocky Mountain area $18.

Sixteen per cent of the families in the southeastern villages had been on relief at one time or another during the year studied. Of the non-relief families, 59 per cent received less than $1,500 a year income.

'Windjammer' Opens Run On Screen at Capitol

Modern life on an old sailing schooner is portrayed in George O'Brien's newest picture, "Windjammer," which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater.

It is an exciting drama of the sea involving yacht racing, kidnapping plotting and fist fighting. Cast with O'Brien are Constance Worth, Brandon Evans and Gavin Gordon. On the stage the Capitol offers the Great Lester in a show of magic. The entire vaudeville act is built around the magician, considered one of the best in his profession.

News, shorts and comedy complete the program. —L.G.

Experiences in War-Torn Far East Told by Atlanta School Teacher

Miss Elma Witcher Praises Japanese Customs; Education Sought.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Arriving in the North China sea on the end of a typhoon picking up more than a thousand refugees and watching the firing on Chinese waterfront are among a few exciting features that marked a visit to the Orient of Miss Elma Witcher, a member of the faculty of Atlanta Girls' High school.

She recently returned to Atlanta from the Far East where she attended the seventh world conference of the World Federation of Educational Association in Tokyo. During with a Japanese guide Miss Witcher and other members of the party found that all manner of programs, events and schedules of business and social affairs had been planned. The entire tour ran like clockwork, except the trip planned to North China, which was called off due to the war.

Tells of Experiences. Miss Witcher yesterday in describing events of her trip to a Constitution reporter said:

"On our way over on a Japanese boat, we received bulletins on the war, all in Japanese. None was in English. The news was quickly translated and we soon knew the situation over there. Our stay in Japan was marked by a series of affairs planned in connection with the educational conference.

"I have never experienced such courtesy as was extended us by the Japanese. We were given every consideration. We had a wonderful opportunity of studying their educational customs and manners.

"Before very long the Japanese won't be as small in stature as they now are. They are taking more outdoor exercise now and they are stopping that old method of strapping the young on their back.

"I was very much impressed by soft voices which all the women possess. They use a lot of make-up, their powder is almost like dough. Their hairdress is very elaborate. They sleep on wooden pillows to keep from disarranging it. The men wear western clothes, which they call the American dress, to work, but in the evening they change to their native kimono. The women for a while wore American clothes, but there is a general trend toward their resuming the dress of their ancestors."

Seek to Learn. "It is inconceivable how much the children in Japan want to learn. In every school yard there is a metal statue of 'The Spirit of Education.' I have a deep respect for the individual Japanese."

"We went to teas and garden parties and saw real Japanese and how they live. Among the affairs we attended were one given by the president of Tokyo Imperial University and the mayor of Tokyo.

"Koki Kirota, the minister of foreign affairs, gave us a garden party at the Detached palace of Kasumigaseki. This was quite an honor as very few visitors are allowed there. It was formerly the residence of his Royal Highness Prince Arisugawa.

"The present foreign style building was constructed in 1884. In 1898 the whole estate was taken over by the Department of the Imperial Household and has since been known as the Kasumigaseki Rikyu. His majesty the Emperor resided there after assuming the regency in 1921."

Attended Weddings. Miss Witcher attended several Japanese weddings and brought home several handsome ceremonial robes. These robes after being worn by the bride are sold according to a Japanese custom that they may never be worn again. When they are lined with red it denotes the ceremonial attire.

CUTICURA SOAP & OINTMENT

BOAT IS SWAMPED, SEVEN ARE RESCUED

One Man Badly Cut by Propeller; Is Given Blood Transfusion.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Seven men were rescued, one critically hacked by a propeller blade, shortly after they were washed off a fishboat today in Great Egg Harbor inlet by a mountainous wave.

Two of the men were picked up by a passing cabin cruiser and later taken off by coast guards who mistook their drying clothes for a distress signal.

Turning about to avoid a heavy sea, the Neirad, power boat out of Pleasantville, with eight aboard, was swamped by a mountainous sheet of water that knocked all but Captain John I. Somers into the inlet.

Andrew Black, 27, of Pleasantville, was cut from thigh to foot on one leg and had all fingers of one hand chopped off by the boat's propeller before Somers succeeded in dragging him back into the boat.

Tongue-Twisting Words Untwisted For Reading Public in Dictionary

Pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanokoniosis Fully Described for All Who Run Across It in Casual Reading; Other Unusual and Interesting Words.

Newly-developed words and phrases, common to the speech of today, but confusing to the minds of many, are explained in a special section of the Webster's Universal unabridged dictionary being offered readers of The Constitution.

There are many words in this classification. A few of them: Americana—noun plural, matter relating to America as in history, ethnography, description, development, social and material advancement, general literature, etc. Empire State of the South—the state of Georgia, so called from its eminence among southern states.

Loggy—an adjective in aviation, denoting the rocking motion of an airplane.

Pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanokoniosis—a special form of silicosis or lung affection, caused by ultramicroscopic particles of siliceous volcanic dust, breathed into the lungs.

Radio-frequency—the frequency of electric waves in radiotelegraphy, which has been estimated from 100,000 to 1,100,000 cycles per second.

Zipper—a metallic contrivance for quickly fastening and opening garments, as coats, vests, mumps, blouses, also shoes, pocket-books, handbags, etc., consisting of a running catch fitting into serrated metallic edgings attached to the articles; at will, the running catch immediately separates, or brings together, the edges thus opening or fastening the articles.

These are only a sample of the many words and phrases fully described.

This American dictionary is being offered readers of The Constitution for only 98 cents per volume together with 24 coupons clipped from the paper. The dictionary is printed in two handy-sized volumes to facilitate handling.

Coupons will begin running in The Constitution Wednesday morning.

SCIENTISTS WARN AGAINST INDISCRIMINATE USE OF REDUCING DRUGS.

It's a toss-up as to who is more gullible—the man who parts his hair on the "what's left" side, or the woman who is looking for some get-slim-quick method. Fortunately, the bald-headed man is in no very great danger. But the over-weight who takes something to convert stored calories into streamlines is risking her health. It is impossible to overstate the danger of these so-called obesity cures. Dr. Helen S. Mitchell and Gladys M. Cook, of the research department of the Massachusetts State College, in a recent bulletin, "Facts, Fads and Frauds in Nutrition," warn against the three types of these cures: Metabolic stimulants, laxative drugs, and food supplements.

The metabolic stimulants, drugs which speed up the metabolism and enable you to burn more calories, are the most dangerous. According to statistics, less than 1 per cent of obese people can blame their abnormal weight on thyroid deficiency. To quote from the pamphlet, "Such cases are treated by thyroid extracts carefully administered by a physician, guided by repeated examinations. Most cases of obesity due to over-indulgence in food and too little exercise should not, however, be treated in this manner. Quack obesity cures are apt to contain potent drugs which are known to increase the rate of metabolism and thus burn up stored body fat and other tissues."

Stimulants of this kind may cause you to be irritable, tremble and depressed. Aside from these ill effects, the drug does not discriminate as to the kind of tissues it destroys and may seriously derange the nervous system and undermine the health.

Well—Streamlines Don't Come in a Bottle.

Another powerful base for many of the reducing cures is dinitrophenol. This drug, as these research workers point out, is known to have an insidious and cumulative effect, causing vague and ill-defined symptoms, and resulting, in some cases, in the rapid development of cataracts.

Laxative drugs bring temporary weight loss through the elimination of water from the system. The loss, however, is in water, not in fat, and as soon as the water balance is restored, the scales are right back at the old figure. Those laxatives have no place as obesity cures, since they hurry along all food, eliminating the protective elements you need. Also, they may result in permanent injury to the intestinal tract.

Likewise, there is no such thing as a reducing food. If you think a food can be reducing, you are in the class with the lady who asked, "When do I take this diet, doctor, before or after meals?" Food does not burn up fat. It may fill a low-calorie niche in the diet, it is true, and in this way it may prove a satisfactory addition to the menu of the reducer. Dr. Mitchell and Miss Cook warn the reducer against such pseudo scientific claims as, "yields quick energy but is never fattening." Any food is as fattening as the energy it yields. There are reducers' food, but not reducing foods.

Beware of taking anything to reduce except upon the advice of your physician.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

Nine Ladies Out of Ten These Days Are Delving Into Dresser Drawers and Pulling Skeletons Out of Family Closets.

Nine ladies out of ten these autumn days are delving into dresser drawers and bringing order out of chaos in the family closets and cupboards. In other words, it's house cleaning time, and no matter how many electrical servants keep the place from getting dirty in the good-old-fashioned way, still and all it takes a yearly clearing out to keep things running smoothly. And it means a lot of careful sorting—things needed all the time, things needed rarely, things that might come in handy some day, things that belong to the trash man.

Converted.

It comes as hard for us as for anybody else to go in for system and order. Nevertheless we have been thoroughly converted to the idea after many bitter experiences with the dump and throw method of storage. In the first place, collect plenty of boxes, large and small, for the job, and don't forget to have stout cord for tying them up and gummed labels and a rubber sponge for marking each box plainly. If you're really serious about all this you'll keep a little card index file (to be had at the five and ten) that will tell at a glance where all your hoarded treasures are.

This is a good time of year to call in your odd job man to put the extra shelves you want for this and that and to do any general repair work you discover yourself in need of. Add the extra hooks you've had on your mind these many months and treat yourself to some new closet boxes and drawer compartments—those transparent ones are the nicest. Cardboard tubes for rolling the table linen and hand towels on are a fastidious note. Summer clothes that will be used again should be put away clean, the others passed on to the Salvation Army or whatever your discards. Summer hats should be kept carefully in boxes, especially the good straw. Clean and wrap white shoes before banishing them for the season.

Summer slip covers and curtains go best into large suit boxes and be sure to keep sets of each room together. Put them away clean but rough dried. Garden tools and outdoor metal furniture should be oiled before putting away for the winter. Luggage stays new longer if it's oiled or cleaned with saddle soap before storing. Those little cheap cigar boxes with sliding tops that you get at the five and ten are elegant for buttons and snaps in your sewing closet. They are also good for pins and hairpins, cuff links and collar buttons in your bureau drawers. Save many a useless motion by having your handkerchief and stocking boxes in your drawers without lids. But the boxes for old ribbons and scarfs should be covered, because otherwise they get scattered. Glove boxes are best covered too. Belts will do better on a rod similar to the one you fix for your husband's ties. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

Beauty, According To You

A "Bowl of Ferns" and Other Very Masculine Shaving Suggestions

By LILLIAN MAE.

You may remember that I devoted a recent feature to a very helpful hint for our dear men. So popular was that column, and so insistent have been the requests from our masculine friends for other such suggestions, that I am bringing to them today another delightful set of very he-man toilet articles. And to you wives, sisters, mothers and sweethearts, let me say I can't think of anything more suitable to put you right than a gift set of these articles.

As usual, I am not recommending anything just because it sounds or looks good, but because these items separately and as a set, distributed among the men with whom I come in daily contact, have been highly praised to me by them. That's what I call "the test of the pudding."

First, there is the "bowl that cheers" that cheers at the morning zero hour, just before you go over the top with cold steel. My informants tell me there's a genuine life and kick in the woody, refreshing, he-man fragrance—not a crudely, femininely perfumed fragrance, but one that will make a hit with the 100 per cent civilized man. This attractive natural-finished wooden bowl contains sufficient shaving soap, it would seem to me, for months and months of voluminous lather. Then, for the desert of your shave! I'm told that this slightly astringent uplift tonic is really a cocktail for the skin—that it is actually soothing to scuffs and nicks which just seem to happen in a hurried shave. And in addition, it has that same wood-fern fragrance which in itself, is rejuvenating. Next, an after-shaving talcum, fine in quality, fern in fragrance and toned to the masculine skin. It contains no feminine pallor—no coquettish odor. In short, it's all man. The sifter-top box itself, shaded from a cream color to a deep, rich yellow, with a spray of fern on each side, has no intimation of femininity.

The last item in my collection today is a hair tonic which is the answer to every real man's prayer. How often have you heard them exclaim "I refuse to smell like a water-front barber shop!" And how often have you, my sister, been almost suffocated with the odor of a strong, entirely unsuitable—for-a-man tonic with which he seems to be saturated! But that's not all, I've seen the difference this tonic makes. Every hair is subdued, but with no suggestion of the sheik. It lends lustre, corrects a dried-out condition, and must certainly be a scalp stimulant, according to these results in appearance. It, like the facial tonic, comes in a non-slip bottle—which is quite important to a hurried toilet.

It isn't often that I go shopping for men, but I am really glad that I've had an opportunity to make these first-hand suggestions today, for I believe men who try one or more of these products will be delighted. And as stated above, separately or collectively, they make ideal gifts, even for the hard-to-please males. Phone me at my office in The Constitution building for names of the products and the stores at which they may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

FOR THE FALL SOCIAL SEASON: Margaret Lindsay, attractive film actress, is seen here in a flesh marquisette hostess gown, the bodice of which is draped in soft folds from a high waistline. Puffed sleeves and a long train are features.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 26.—With the fall social season practically here, the glamor queens of Hollywood are buying up all the hostess gowns in town. Margaret Lindsay wears a good sample of the current favorites in "Back in Circulation." Extremely youthful is the flesh marquisette gown with bodice draped in soft folds from a high waistline and finished with a tailored collar and bow of self material. Attractive features are the huge puffed sleeves and the train sweeping out at the back. For street wear, Miss Lindsay wears a tailored dress of wine-toned sheer wool showing inverted tucks at the front and tailored collar and cuffs of eggshell faille. A felt pill box hat and suede accessories of the same shade as the dress complete the costume.

Mary Maguire, Warner Brothers' player, owns a smart jacket costume suitable for town wear. Simply styled, the heavy black sheer dress has a turned down collar of white linen finished with linen roses at the front. The bolero jacket is also of white linen. Mary completes the outfit with a white felt off-the-face hat showing a black grosgrain trim, white gauntlet gloves and black patent leather shoes and bag.

Exemplifying what the well-dressed campus co-ed will wear this season, Jane Bryan recently purchased a smart dress of Kelly green suede with belt buckle and buttons, which fasten the turn-down flaps of the pockets, made of shiny steel. A "vagrabond" hat and coat of caramel brown suede create a striking contrast.

Gloria Dickson takes advantage of the remaining few days of summer to bask in a one-piece culotte of white jersey splashed with brilliant orange, yellow and brown figures. A pale yellow slide fastener marks the front closing. A white corded crepe bandeau adorns Miss Dickson's blonde head.

Milo Anderson uses shell pink chiffon for an evening ensemble in Jane Wyman's personal wardrobe. A band of smocking marks the high waistline and shoulder-length sleeves. The dress is also used to trim the elbow length cape. The costume is completed with a corsage of tuberous begonias.

Lana Turner recently proved her flair for dress designing is on a par with her acting ability, appearing at a cocktail party in a street-length black dinner dress featuring a long, slim V-neck and bell-shaped sleeves. The black dress is also used to trim the elbow length cape. The costume is completed with a corsage of tuberous begonias.

Dominoes of color in a suit designed by Howard Shoup for Warners' "Submarine D-1." Autumn colors of gray and brick are deftly used with a dash of bright green. The skirt is brick twice as wide as the short jacket which features wide lapels and U-shaped hip pockets cobbler-stitched in gray. A gray crepe blouse set off with a green scarf tie, gray felt hat banded in green and tweed swaggar top-coat plaided in gray and brick complete the outfit.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Chatfield, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

She's a pampered, petted only child starting off for her first year at college. She admits frankly that she's as much interested in making friends as in making good grades (this she's always done); that she had rather be liked by everyone than lead her class. Now she's going out on her own and she's afraid she won't be popular. "What shall I do; how shall I begin?" she asks.

Well, Miss Frosh, you should begin by cultivating the same interest in your college mates that you have in your textbooks. Come up to the new acquaintances with an open mind, free from prejudice. Each of them has something to give you. Study them, find out what they offer and take it. Then study them to see what they want of you and give it.

Don't make the mistake of expecting the other girls to dress, think, talk or behave as you do; they may have been brought up differently. Don't demand that they make themselves over to please you. You can forfeit the good will and the friendship of a girl by criticizing her and making invidious comparisons between yourself and her. Even if you do this out of hearing, somebody will tote the tale back to her.

Remember, good manners are the sesame to every society. Courtesy is the trade mark that shows a girl well bred, kindly, considerate, sympathetic and understanding. Some people are born with good manners; but alas others have to acquire them. Practice makes perfect in the art. Just as the foot of an experienced driver springs automatically to the clutch of the car when the gears must be changed, so good manners become automatic to the person that makes a habit of practicing them.

At college a girl can't point to her fine family background, or depend upon her beauty and wit, or her A grades to get her over. Her college mates don't care a snap for her heritage, her father's bank account or her mother's social charm—unless daughter is an agreeable companion. The girls judge her by what she puts out, not by what she tells them of her background and her right to belong.

Give your companions a little holly-holly stuff and they will give you the go-by. Practice frankness to prove your sincerity and they will side-step you. Nobody wants to hear the truth if it hurts. Let your top-grades betray you into taking pot shots at those below you and they will hate you.

Nobody in the dormitory will be interested in your gripes and complaints nor be impressed by your alibis. Nobody will excuse your selfishness or your ill-temper as the family did. Nobody will want to keep you supplied with cosmetics, stockings, letter paper and stamps. The college borrower is a pain in the neck. Nobody will want to hear you air your ego either. You needn't tell anybody how good you are. If you are good as you think, they will discover it and if you aren't they will smigger when your back is turned.

Miss Frosh, you are taking on a large order when you set out to be popular with your college mates. If you fill it, you will discover that it nets you more satisfaction to the square inch than any other order. Whatever you may learn from books; language, science, art and what not, it will do you precious little good unless you learn that greatest of all life's lessons: how to get on pleasantly with people—Gentle Art of Making Friends.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

CASPER, Wyo., Friday.—On this trip, the President has been stressing the point that it is the duty of any chief executive to go about the country to try to learn at first hand the problems affecting the 48 states, for these are going to come to him throughout the year via the representatives from the states. Each representative is naturally going to feel that the problems of his state require special consideration. It is the duty of the President to keep the balance and to try to work out a program which will be beneficial to all and unfair to none. This can't be done unless you see conditions with your own eyes and talk to people who are in touch with them.

When the President made this remark I wondered how much one could see from the windows of a train. Then I began to analyze what I myself was seeing. We woke this morning to the bluest of skies over the plains of Wyoming. We have seen the mountains in the distance and the curious formations of the country made up of grazing land, high plateaus and steep, rocky gullies.

The grass is better this year than it was last year, there has been a little more rain. In consequence, the cattle and sheep look better and the people themselves look more cheerful. This part of the country has been hard hit but I think the people's confidence is coming back. We stopped in Cheyenne on schedule and I remembered the pleasant time spent here on our last trip through this section of the country.

At several places where we had no scheduled stops, we have been out on the back platform and the President has asked the crowd about the crops and how things are going generally. They answered and asked him questions in return. At the last stop, where the Wheatland reservoir is of great importance, for it will impound water for use in dry seasons, he talked to them a little about that project.

I thought it was rather significant that way out here, far away from our coasts, when the President answered that we will do our best to stay out of war, the applause was spontaneous and loud. Governor Cochran, of Nebraska, dined with us last night and left us in Omaha. Today Governor Miller, of Wyoming, is with us and the Governor of Colorado also joined us for a short time. Late this afternoon we will get off the train and drive around Casper, Wyoming.

The temperature is distinctly lower than it was when we left home and, since going, the sky has become cloudy. I think we may find our fur coats useful, though they seemed superfluous pieces of baggage.

Tomorrow morning we will be at the entrance to Yellowstone Park, where our daughter, Anna, her husband and our two grandchildren will join us. The children have not seen their grandfather for a long time and Anna wrote their excitement was great when they were told they were coming out to join us.

Each Day Read a Cheering Poem

Perhaps you've read and loved this favorite, "The House By the Side of the Road" by Sam Walter Foss. But have you read it often? Do you know it all?

Make a part of your daily life the poems that cheer and inspire. What zest "September," by Helen Hunt Jackson, gives to autumn days. It begins:

"The golden rod is yellow;
The corn is turning brown;
The trees in apple orchards
With fruit are bending down.
With fruit are bending down.
And here's a noble verse by Ella Wheeler Wilcox from "Thoughts":
"Hide in your heart a bitter thought
Still it has power to blight.
Think Love, although you speak it not,
It gives the world more light."
Who would care to forget the touching poem that starts:
"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row...
"O lullaby, 'Baby'?"
"Whence that three-cornered smile of bliss?"
Three angels gave me at once a kiss."

These and many more favorite poems—the poems you wish you'd kept to read and read again—are given complete in our 40-page booklet, "Poems the Whole World Loves," by Longfellow, Tennyson, Kipling, many others.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "POEMS THE WHOLE WORLD LOVES," to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by...
The men who are good and the men who are bad,
As good and as bad as I."

YOU'LL NEVER HAVE ANOTHER BODY

So, why not take care of the one you have? You can turn your used car on a new one, but when your body wears out, you can't get another one.

The most precious possession of a human being is health. Any normal man or woman can, by the observance of common-sense rules for the treatment of the body, maintain it in reasonably good health.

Here's a booklet of general rules for health, with chapters on important organs of the body, telling how they function, and how to keep them in best condition. Send the coupon below for your copy:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 26.—(P)—The American Red Cross, after expending $4,886,325.72 for flood relief in Louisville and Jefferson county, announced closing of its headquarters here today and the return of Paul Hutchins, relief director, to Washington.

Visits With Former Atlantans Mark Mr., Mrs. Anderson's Trip

By Sally Forth.

CONNIE and Albert Anderson, who returned a few days ago from Honolulu, bring interesting news regarding former Atlantans whom they saw while on their trip. In Honolulu, the Andersons visited Albert's brother and sister, Lieutenant and Mrs. William E. Anderson, who are popular members of the United States navy circles.

One of the most pleasant days enjoyed in Honolulu was that spent with Captain and Mrs. C. B. Irwin and Edith Kendrick, declare Connie and Albert. Mrs. Irwin is the former Jean Kendrick, of Atlanta, and she and her army officer husband enjoy the military life at Schofield Barracks, where Captain Irwin is stationed. Edith is spending several months with the Irwins and, according to Connie and Albert, the Atlanta visitor is having the time of her young life on Hawaiian shores.

Upon their return voyage the Andersons were met at San Francisco by the former Anna Harriett Shewmake, of Atlanta, who resides in the California port with her navy officer husband, Lieutenant Rufus G. Thayer and their young sons, Rufus Jr. and Gerard.

It was a grand reunion for Connie and Anna Harriett, who are life-long friends and whose families are closely bound by the ties of friendship. Anna Harriett planned a perfect day for the Andersons' entertainment but it was so crowded that she was forced to allow only 24 hours on their schedule for San Francisco.

In Salt Lake City the Andersons spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Smith, the latter being the former Harriett Turman, of this city, another lifelong friend of Connie's. Like the Thayers, Harriett and Cliff had also planned a round of entertainment for their Atlanta guests during their brief sojourn in the Utah city.

Connie and Albert, who are visiting their parents, the John Spaldings, declare their visits with former Atlanta friends are among the happiest memories of their eventful trip.

ATLANTANS attending the Kentucky horse show this month were proud of the showings made by a trio of Atlanta riders and their mounts.

Especially good was the showing made by young Lupton Rainwater, son of the Vezey Rainwaters, in the Kentucky State Fair show. As a three-gaited gelding, Champagne Cocktail, which is pictured frequently in horse magazines, Lupton won the blue in the junior class. In the yearling futurity Lupton won first money when he showed American Queen Mary, a handsome bay filly that is highly prized in the horse world. Accompanying Lupton to Louisville were his parents and his brothers, Brown and Crawford, and his aunt, Mrs. Martha Brown Edmondson.

Suzanne Ferst represented Atlanta's feminine riders at the Kentucky show, her smart riding habits bringing forth high compliments for the young equestrienne. Suzanne showed her dapple gray mare, Dolly Gray, and displayed excellent horsemanship as she circled the big ring in the Ladies' stake, which was sponsored by Lupton Rainwater.

It was disappointing to Atlantans attending the Louisville show that Mrs. Wilsie Riley's magnificent five-gaited mare, Greenwood Highland Flower, had to be withdrawn on account of a shipping cold. En route to Louisville Highland Flower showed at the Bowling Green show and won first in the model class, second in the Reserve Championship and second in the open-gaited class, in which the country's top horses were shown. Mrs. Riley, by the way, was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. MacGregor in their box at the Louisville performance.

Other Atlantans attending the Kentucky state show were Mr. and Mrs. James D. Henry. Eugene Gunby, Miss Eleanor Clay, John K. Oltz, Mrs. Harrie McCullough Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Ferst and Frank Adair.

Y. W. Club Requests Books for Library

Before opening clubs the first week in October, the business girls' department of the Y. W. C. A. requests friends whose book-cases are crowded to forward the surplus to the "Y" administration building, 37 Auburn avenue.

Mrs. Bond Almand, chairman of business girls' committee, and Mrs. Allen B. Gossell, secretary, have been renovating the third floor, adding attractive lamps, bookshelves and bric-a-brac for an attractive library for club members. Anyone having books, but unable to bring them to 37 Auburn, is requested to phone Mrs. Almand or the Y. W. C. A. business girls' office.

With business, industrial and leisure time clubs opening the week of October 4, and health education classes in tap, gymnasium and swimming beginning that week, "Y" registration desks will hum with activity during the next two weeks.

Miss Frances Keller, health education secretary, reminds those planning to join the gym to see that physical exam cards from the physicians are up to date, and that registrations be made early.

New tap class for children 10 to 15 years old will be held on Saturday mornings at 9:15 o'clock. Following this, children may swim in the "Y" pool from 12 to 1 o'clock. Information about other classes may be secured by phoning the "Y" information desk.

Monday, the board of directors meet for business session and luncheon from 10:30 to 1:30 o'clock to discuss plans for the various departments, Community Chest campaign, and other important items. Mrs. Emmett Quinn will preside.

Wednesday, Mrs. L. J. Hollister calls a meeting of the publicity committee to make plans for the Y. W. C. A. exhibit to be held in the education building at the Southeastern Fair, October 7-16. Friday, all "Y" members and friends are invited to the membership luncheon, held at 12:30, to hear Dr. William V. Gardner, pastor of First Presbyterian church. Reservations should be phoned by Thursday noon to WA. 8961.

Miss Weida David Honored by Miss Baker

In compliment to Miss Weida David, whose marriage to Marshall Forbes will be an event of October 14, Miss Birdie Baker entertained recently at her home on Rock Springs road.

She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Harry Baker, and sister, Miss Sara Jane Baker. A lovely bridal cake embellished with pink roses and valley lilies formed the table's centerpiece. Lighted silver bells hung from the chandeliers and pink roses, lilies of the valley and white-tapered candles completed the table arrangement.

Guests were Misses David, Frances Peters, June Hanaburger, Kitty Burger, Lucy Connor, Frances Holmes, Frances Hanson, Yvonne Physio, Marie Cleveland, Ruth Faries, Elizabeth Bridges, Hil-da Carrington and Mesdames R. T. David, J. R. Forbes, J. E. Patton, W. C. Hightower, Eiton Parker, H. T. Hopkins, E. H. Adams, R. F. Fuller, C. L. Funder, Dye, C. Osteen, Alton Burdett and Susie Wilson.

Miss Sara Bell Elected Head Of Women's Overseas League

Miss Sara Inman Bell was elected president of the Atlanta unit, Women's Overseas Service League at the meeting held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Lisle B. Robinson on Northwest drive.

Other officers elected were Miss Mildred Parsons, vice president; Mrs. L. B. Robinson, treasurer; Miss Estelle Martin, assistant treasurer; Miss Celia Johnson, recording secretary; Miss Pauline Heermance, corresponding secretary.

Miss Bell is a charter member of the Atlanta Overseas League and is well qualified to assume the leadership of this organization which is recognized as one of Atlanta's leading patriotic groups. The membership of the League is composed of women who served overseas during the World War, and who have continued in the field of service during the following years.

Miss Bell served in France with the Y. M. C. A. and her services to the American army won for her high commendation from army officials.

Chairmen of committees for the convention will be announced at the next meeting of the unit to be held at the home of Mrs. John L. Graves, 427 Brentwood drive, on October 23.

The Atlanta unit was organized in August, 1919, at the home of Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, the newly elected president's aunt, who, as the unit's godmother, has manifested much interest in its work and in its growth. Miss Bell has held practically every office in the organization serving as the unit's president during its second year; Mrs. Edward Brown, the former Miss Esther Smith, being the unit's first president.

The unit's newly elected officers will concentrate during the forthcoming year on plans for the National Women's Overseas Service League convention to be held here next July. Several hundred prominent women from throughout the country will come to Atlanta for the convocation and the Atlanta unit will entertain the delegates at a series of social affairs during the business sessions.

"I was a happy little girl," she said thoughtfully. "My father was the sort of man who keeps the feeling of a child. He always understood children. To the end of his life he liked to pick up a baby and make love to it."

Her voice had softened, as it always did when she spoke of her father.

"To such a man, having a child of his own must seem a miracle," Karl said, and she knew he was thinking of himself. He loved children, too. They fascinated him. He would watch Jimmy and the little Bagley girls with passionate, serious attention, ask questions about them. The casual ease with which Kitty and Gloria interpreted their ridiculous questions and solved their tremendous problems was a mystery to him.

Was he thinking, she wondered, with a little tug at her heart, that Peter loved his boy, and was separated from him? If he was he gave no sign of it, but presently put a bracing hand, as hard as steel, upon her elbow to guide her over the rough bit of road.

"I suppose you get used to compliments," he said unexpectedly when they were nearing the end of the walk and the lights of the house were shining across the wide drive. He usually left her here.

"Nobody ever gets used to compliments," Gloria laughed. She could see his face now, as they stood at the foot of the steps.

"Then may I say," he asked, with a little stiff bow, "that that is a particularly beautiful gown you are wearing and that it becomes you?" When you were talking to Tony tonight it seemed to me—well, shall I say it?—it seemed to me that I never had seen so lovely a picture."

"You may always say things like that!" Gloria assured him, with another pleased little laugh. But she was more deeply touched than she would show; she lingered on for a moment, a little confused, conscious of odd happiness deep somewhere within her, and a little fright, too, and a heart-shaking thrill.

"Wouldn't it be too bad—" the man began, his smile gliding up at her in the semilight. He stopped.

"Wouldn't what?" she asked, standing a step above him, her hand in his.

"Nothing!" he said abruptly. "Good-night!"

He walked away into the darkness toward his own doorway, without a backward look. Gloria stood still for a full minute. Then she turned and went slowly up the steps and into the house.

The month's went by, and Gloria was busy and happy. It was winter; the sunny days were brief, the old people did not get out into the air until 11 o'clock, straggled back like returning cattle at 4. The wet and cold and foggy days seemed endless; Tony grew tired of his fireside and the eternal crackle of logs and drip of leaves; Jimmy and the little girls tired of crayons and blocks. Kitty would sometimes walk with Jimmy and the girls to the Bayview; Gloria would welcome them, and gave them rough brown biscuits and milky tea.

Just before Christmas she made a change. She rented her little house, sent Molly away and took Carmela and Jimmy over to the sanatorium to live with her. Her mother had been longing to get away to the warmth of San Diego; she had friends there; she promised to be back in April. But Gloria, offered a good rent for a year, signed a lease, and trusted to fate to solve her mother's problem when the time for her return came. It lessened her own responsibilities not to have the house to manage as well as the sanatorium; she and Jimmy and his nurse moved into the empty suite in the research wing and Gloria's old room was instantly filled by one more patient.

Expenses were so much lessened by this that Gloria could begin to contemplate with satisfaction a growing bank account. She and Jimmy need pay no bills at the sanatorium; she charged herself with Carmela's board, as she charged board against every nurse in the institution, but it was trifling, and, for the rest, laundry, food, lodging, telephone, light, water, rent were all included in her prerogatives as superintendent. The hundred dollars monthly rent for the little Spanish farmhouse was just so much more clear gain, for the taxes were absurdly low and the mortgage had long been wiped out.

With Jimmy and Carmela always close to her, Gloria's responsibilities were infinitely lessened and her joy in the child doubled. She could have her boy in bed with her in the cold mornings while the radiator clanked reluctantly and winter dark lifted from the gardens, the roofs of the village and the steel-gray cold bay. Fifteen minutes of romping with Jimmy left them both laughing and breathless.

"My mother hears you two shouting in there in the mornings," Karl told her, "and says to me, 'There are those children again!'"

"We wake her up? We'll have to be quieter," Gloria said, immediately grave and concerned.

"No, no, no; she is already having coffee at 7."

"If we do ever bother her, Karl, you'll tell me?"

"Certainly I'll tell you! But you'll never bother her."

Gloria was always dressed early and upon her rounds, questioning, inspecting, making suggestions and giving directions. She joined Jimmy and Carmela at breakfast at 8; afterwards she had a hundred duties, and Jimmy went down with Max and the truck and was dropped at the Sunshine Nursery school at 9. When he came in, breathless from great adventures, after the walk up the hill with Carmela at 1 o'clock, he and his mother shared their lunch; then Carmela took charge of him, often to walk with him to the Bagleys' and Gloria took a luxury nap if she was tired and a walk if she was not. Karl had fallen into the habit of joining her for at least the first mile of the walk. When Gloria turned back he went on and up, a square, rapidly moving figure in his old belted raincoat and cap, among the yellows and greens and browns of the hills and fields.

Over these weeks there hung for her a peculiar glory. It touched everything in her life; the step of her white buckskin shoes on the linoleum and tiles of the sanatorium, the shine of the sun against a frosted winter window, the brushing sound of Martin's broom on the wet leaves on the terrace, the floating odor of bacon and coffee that drifted into the big, bright dining room in the morning.

She had admitted, months earlier, that Karl Pletcher's dynamic personality had made a great difference in her life, as in every other life it touched. She had said to herself that whether one liked him or disliked him, his was an important presence here, as it would be anywhere. She had watched, with that intense reverence which the conscious use of power always awakened in her, the movements of his fine, trained hands, the expressions that changed so rapidly on his absorbed face. She had known his angry moods, his impatient moods, his unreasonable moods; she had known, too, what a lonely child's heart his still was, hungry for affection, starved for the intimacies of home and love.

For months Gloria had studied this man at close range; it was inevitable that propinquity should do its work. She knew now that it was her feeling for Karl which was lending enchantment to her life, which had blotted out every other feeling. That he loved her, too, she had every reason to suspect. He had never spoken of it, nor had she. But it glowed between them like some wonderful jewel which they might hide in their clasped hands, but which each knew was there, ready to sparkle into full glory the moment they released it.

Gloria, even in her own thoughts, would go no farther than this: that into her heart had come an all-pervading, exquisite, breath-taking joy of devotion and that she suspected that in the man's heart the same feeling existed. She could not think of the future without a change, any change, any consummation of this fluttering, delicate beginning of love; she did not want to do so. She felt no interest in any possible development; the mere fact was enough. She loved Karl and he loved her.

"And why not?" she would ask herself, hugging her miraculous secret close, moving about in a changed and irradiated world. "Why shouldn't a man and a woman love each other? There's nothing wrong in love. It makes me feel excited and proud and happy all the time. What harm is there in that? I wouldn't throw Jimmy and Peter down for 50 Karl Pletcher; I wouldn't have the tip of Jimmy's finger hurt for a thousand of him! But to know that he likes me, that the most important man I've ever known thinks I'm attractive, why, that just makes life pleasanter and doesn't hurt any one."

But this mood, too, was not lasting. Gloria began to feel the rest of her world fading, losing its color, her feelings for Karl growing deeper, more glowingly intense with every hour. Peter, her mother, the old days and ways of the little Spanish farmhouse dwindled into a pleasant blur of emotional, vague memories; she still loved them, of course, but it was with a love that had nothing real in it, no genuine connection with her senses or her emotions. Even Jimmy became less important; he was still her boy and her darling, but he was only a sweet, gay child, and no child had ever been able to play a man's part in a woman's life.

No; there was nothing now except Karl, and the floating sensation of the sailboat, and the world's thoughts, distracted for a few minutes flowed back to him. There was nothing but this glory of loving, of being ready to suffer and renounce and sacrifice if need be, but under it all to go on loving forever.

Continued Tomorrow.

THE STORY OF GLASS.

I—Long Ago.

A glass fish is one of the relics of ancient Egypt. It was made 3,500 years ago, or more. The fish is hollow, has an open mouth, and is believed to have been used as a bottle.

Glass products of Ancient Egypt.

That is only one example of the glass work of the olden Egyptians. Another is a glass hippopotamus. The hippo's body is marked with the outlines of water plants such as grow in the Nile river. A water lily which the beast is eating is also shown.

No one knows when glass was made for the first time, or just how it came to be made. A Roman writer set down this legend: "A party of Phoenician sailors went ashore and built a bonfire on the beach. In their cooking, they used cakes of soda, and some of the soda dropped on the sand.

"At the end of the meal, one of the sailors happened to look at the ground where the fire had been. There he saw something shiny. He picked it up—it was a piece of the first glass!"

That story no doubt was made up to explain something the Romans did not know about. More likely, the first glass was made in Egypt.

However it was made, the first glass surely contained sand. That is the chief thing used in making glass.

Lime is found as an 'impure' part of sands around the Nile valley. Since lime is important in making glass, the impure sand helps explain why glass was made there in early times.

The third important thing for glass-making is soda—just plain soda of the kind used for baking. Soda of this kind was known to the people of ancient times. Glass jars, vases and so on were made by the olden Greeks and Romans. They used coloring matter to stain the glass. Clear, transparent glass does not seem to have been made until about the year 250.
